

Lemon Pies--That Are Different

(Contributed)

The Lemon Pie committee of the Anacortes Improvement club begs leave to announce that a great and glorious lemon pie sale will be conducted during the two days of the Inter-Island fair, Friday and Saturday, September 29 and 30.

In answer to the question, "Why just lemon pie?" the members of the Improvement club, being women, might exercise their time-honored privilege and say "Because." But in this case there is a reason. When they went before the city council to make their offer of one thousand dollars toward the purchase of the Wakefield tract of land, a member of the committee remarked that, although they were perfectly confident of raising the money, a thousand dollars' worth of lemon pies looked like a big undertaking. To her, lemon pies were symbolic of the usual methods by which women earn money for cherished projects outside the home. But the mere suggestion of lemon pie caused quite a thrill of interest throughout the august council chamber, and almost simultaneously the mayor and an interested citizen rose to assure the ladies that lemon pies sounded like a good proposition to them. From that moment the possibilities of lemon pie loomed large. Hence the coming sale.

And every woman in Anacortes is hereby urged to contribute one, two or three lemon pies, and every man in Anacortes is hereby urged to eat one, two or three lemon pies,—as many, in fact, as he can afford,—at one dollar per pie. Of course, from a material standpoint, no pie is worth a dollar, but these pies are different. Every pie will contain so much of the concentrated spirit of good will, cheerful giving and community interest, that it will be worth all the purchaser can possibly afford to spend for it.

And every dollar secured through this sale will be used for the sole purpose of paying for this valuable addition to the city park system.

Watch for window advertising, ask your neighbors for the latest information about lemon pies, and don't worry for fear you can't make as good a pie as some one else can,—all lemon pies are good.

If you are not personally solicited for a pie or two, it is because some one has blundered, and Mrs. Leison, phone 682, will be glad to have you let her know that you wish to contribute your share.

If you haven't a particularly satisfactory recipe for lemon pie, the two following have been furnished us by a lady who is generally conceded to be one of the best pie makers in Anacortes:

1. Filling for lemon pie: Yolks of 3 eggs, juice and grated rind of one lemon, 3 tablespoonsful of water, half cup sugar, butter size of a walnut. Cook in double boiler until thick, then pour over the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, to which has been added half cup sugar. Place in crust previously baked, set in oven to brown.

2. Filling for lemon pie: Juice and grated rind of one lemon, 1 cup sugar, 3 egg yolks, three-quarter cup of water, one tablespoonful of flour. Cook in double boiler until thick. Pour into crust and spread with stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, sweetened to taste. Brown in oven.
